The Statue of Liberty (Liberty Enlightening the World; French: La Liberté éclairant le monde) is a colossal neoclassical sculpture on Liberty Island in New York Harbor in New York City, in the United States. The copper statue, a gift from the people of France to the people of the United States, was designed by French sculptor Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi and its metal framework was built by Gustave Eiffel. The statue was dedicated on October 28, 1886

Minor changes

Slight revisions made from the original text

The figure of the statue is Libertas, a Roman robed liberation goddess. She holds a torch above its head with her right hand, and in her left hand carries a tabula ansata inscribed JULY IV MDCCLXXVI (July 4, 1776 in Roman numerals), the date of the U.S. Declaration of Independence.

Paraphrased

Use of different words and phrasing to convey the same message

Bartholdi is a French inspired professor of law and a politician, who commented in 1865 that a monument to US independence will be a joint project of the United States and the French people. The progress was delayed by the Franco-Prussian war up until 1875, afterwards Laboulaye proposed that the statue would be financed by France and the US would provide a site. Bartholdi was able to complete the head and torch bearing arm before designing the entire monument, and these pieces were shown at international expositions for publicity.
